PV, BHS students report on RYLA

What began as an almost no-notice substitute program on Aug. 19 quickly turned into a demonstration of the ability of four Rotary Youth Leadership Academy grads to think on their feet and exercise some of the leadership skills they had developed at this summer's RYLA.

In introducing the students – two each from Bettendorf and Pleasant Valley high schools – PV superintendent Jim Spelhaug thanked BRC for its "investment in the youth of our community." BRC and the Iowa QC Rotary co-sponsor three RYLA participants each.

The week-long RYLA brings together more than 150 high school students from across Iowa to a college campus where they learn about leadership, group cooperation – and, often, about themselves – from Rotary counselors, college-age counselors and guest speakers from many walks of life.

BHS senior Michael Trahan said he learned the value of cooperation and trusting others from team-building exercises such as “the spider web” – in which team members lift a person some 5 feet off the ground and pass him or her through a web-like maze of ropes.

PV senior Bennett Cournoyer praised MAD Groups (Make a Difference) for the way they let group members talk in complete confidentiality about many personal issues. “I learned a lot about many topics and the viewpoints of others in the group,” he said.

Harrison Qu of PV described how an exercise called True Colors classified students in one of four colors based on personality types: blue = emotional, green = thoughtful, orange = spontaneous and gold = organized. Later, when team members shared thoughts and ideas, Harrison said, it was surprising how their “color” affected their comments.

Michael Pyebich, a BHS junior, said he will help students chosen for next year’s RYLA understand the program better than he felt he did going into it.

When asked what they believed to be the most important points to take away from their RYLA experience, they mentioned such values as:

- Treat others with an open mind...
- Don’t be quick to judge based on superficial factors...
- “Pay it forward,” that is, help others along the way – with much the same spirit as the Rotary motto, “Service above Self”...

In summing up, Theron Schutte, Bettendorf Schools superintendent, noted that all four agreed that the experience of RYLA helped them become close friends with students from throughout Iowa – and it will help them lead in their school, and community.
